

1.2 Wendy: I used to see Helen at university when I was studying meteorology. She couldn't handle my ability to see into the future. It freaked her out. Even though it was scientific, Helen thought there must be some hocus pocus involved in it.

2.3 Anyone _____ (except Wendy): I heard Wendy say, "I'm tired of all these tests by skeptics. I was stressed, so I failed their silly test. They published an article about it. So what? My fans know I'm the best forecaster. I rang Helen to complain. She denied any involvement, but I knew she was lying."

2.14 Anyone _____ (except Wendy): I heard Wendy say, "I only work in the daytime. I like to have the clouds around to be able to use them in my forecasting for local weather patterns. I also use computer analysis of weather charts and so on."

3.7 Wendy: (If asked what you were doing last night, say): Last night, a friend gave me a massage treatment because my liver is congested. After she left at around six, I made myself a miso soup, read for a while, had an aromatherapy bath and went to bed.

3.24 Anyone _____ (except Leonie): When I saw you a few days ago Leonie, I have never seen you look so dark. You said you didn't want to talk about it, but you said that you would lighten up once you'd done what you planned to do. You said you were going to make the world a better place.

2.24 Wendy: (if someone asks why your job is on the line say): I'm pretty sure Helen sent them. They were out to grill me. They made me predict the temperature of the city in mid summer. Everyone knows how variable the city weather is. It can range anywhere from 75 to 100 F in just one day. It just wasn't fair.

3.16 Anyone _____ (except Wendy): I heard Wendy say, "I live alone because my relationships with men haven't been that successful. I think they find me too successful and threatening as a result. Where I live is trendier than City Cross even though it isn't far from it."
